202、 The first year of college is the most difficult year. For students who leave their hometown to attend college, one of the hardest parts of starting college is that freshmen have to learn to rely on themselves. They must be able to live in small, crowded rooms and take care of their own things, learn to use a university library, and find their way around town. They should be able to follow schedules, organize their time for study and play, and think for themselves.

Before arriving on campus, a new student gets a packet of information from the university. This packet usually includes a campus map, information about places to live and have meals, and general information about campus life. The packet doesn't, however, tell students how to get along with others or how to be successful at studies.

A freshman usually has an advisor---a professor who helps the new student plan his schoolwork. Together they check course offerings, examination schedules, and university requirements before the semester starts. Freshmen need to take courses in a number of areas, so such advice is important. Most freshmen take course, a science course, math, and composition or history. The advisor gives advice as to which courses the new student should take.

The social side of life is another matter. If the student lives on campus, for example, there will be many other new students to talk with. There will also be after-class activities to help new students to get to know one another and make friends.

By the end of the semester, most students start to feel both confident and comfortable at school. The next hard part is going back home for the semester break.

Most freshmen suddenly feel that they don't fit in at home anymore. It is not easy to be a freshman at a university.

答案： D

203、 I was born in the city of York, in England, in the year of 1632. My father was a man of some wealth, able to give me a good home and send me to school. It was his wish that I should be a lawyer but my head began to be filled very early with thoughts of travel, and I would be satisfied with nothing but going to sea. My father gave me strong advice against it, but with little effect. One day, being at Hull, I met a school fellow who was about to sail for London in his father's ship, and he invited me to go with him, and without telling my father, I went on board.

On the way to London, a storm arose, the ship was wrecked (失事), and we barely escaped with our lives. I went on foot to London, where I met the master of a vessel which did business with countries on the coast of Africa. He took a fancy to me, and offered me a chance to go with him on his voyages, which I gladly accepted.

A great storm came up, and the ship was tossed (被颠簸) for many days, until we didn't know where we were. Suddenly we struck a bank of sand, and the sea broke over the ship in such a way that we couldn't hope to have her hold many moments without breaking into pieces. So we launched (使下水) a boat. After we had been driven four or five miles, a mountainous wave struck us so hard that it overturned the boat at once. Though I swam well but the waves were so strong that I was dashed against a rock with such force that it left me senseless. But I recovered a little before the waves returned, and, running forward, got to the mainland safely.

204 、 Language learning begins with listening. Children are greatly different in the amount of listening they do before they start speaking, and later starters are often long listeners .Most children will“obey”spoken instructions some time before they can speak, though the word“obey”is hardly accurate as a description of the eager and delighted cooperation usually shown by the child .Before they can speak, many children will also ask questions by gesture and by making questioning noises.

Any attempt to study the development from the noises babies make to their first spoken words leads to considerable difficulties. It is agreed that they enjoy making noises ,and that during the first few months one or two noises sort themselves as particularly expressive as delight, pain ,friendliness, and so on But since these can't be said to show the baby's intention to communicate ,they can hardly be regarded as early forms of language .It is agreed, too, that from about three months they play with sounds for enjoyment ,and that by six months they are able to add new words to their store This self-imitation (模仿) leads on to deliberate (有意的) imitation of sounds made or words spoken to them by other people. The problem then arises as to the point at which one can say that these imitations can be considered as speech.

It is a problem we need to get our teeth into. The meaning of a word depends on what a word depends on what a particular person means by it in a particular situation; and it is clear that what a child means by a word will change as he gains more experience of the world .Thus the use .at seven months .of “mama”as a greeting for his mother cannot be dismissed as a meaning-less sound simply because he also uses it at another times for his father ,his dog ,or any-thing else he likes. Playful and meaningless imitation of what other people say continues after the child has begun to speak for himself ,I doubt ,however whether anything is gained when parents take advantage of this ability in an attempt to teach new sounds .

Before children start speaking _____.

A、

they need equal amount of listening

B、

they need different amounts of listening

C、

they are all eager to cooperate with the adults by obey spoken instructions

D、

they can't understand and obey the adult 's oral instructions

答案: B

(2)、

Children who start speaking late _____.

A、

may have problems with their listening

B、

Probably do not hear enough language spoken around them

C、

Usually pay close attention to what they hear

D、

Often take a long time in learning to listen properly

答案: D

(3)、

A baby's first noises are _____.

A、

an expression of his moods and feelings

B、

an early form of language

C、

a sign that he means to tell you something

D、

An imitation of the speech of adults.

答案: A

(4)、

The problem of deciding at what point a baby's imitations can be considered as speech _____.

A、

is important because words have different meanings for different people

B、

is not especially important because the changeover takes place gradually is one that should be properly understood because the meaning of words changes with age.

C、

D、

Is one that should be completely ignored (忽略) because children's use of words is often meaningless .

答案: B

(5)、

The speaker implies _____ .

A、

parents can never hope to teach their children new sounds.

B、

children no longer imitate people after they begin to speak

C、

Children who are good at imitating learn new words more quickly

D、

even after they have learnt to speak ,children still enjoy imitating

答案: D

205、 I worked as a manager in a company for a number of years. I liked my job, and was doing well there, but our company was bought by a large company and most of the managers at our place lost their jobs. That was when I decided to do something I'd always wanted to do---become a freelance (自由撰稿的) writer. Changing professions (职业) has meant that my lifestyle has changed in a number of ways.

The main difference for me now is that I have a much more flexible (灵活的) schedule. I work about as much as I did before---between 45 and 50 hours a week---but my schedule is much less rigid than it used to be. Before, I worked from 8 to 5 every day, with a few extra hours on weekends. Now, however, I work when I feel like it. For instance, sometimes I work until midnight or 2 a.m., then sleep until noon. I really prefer this kind of schedule. It seems more natural to me.

I also decided that it was about time I began to pay more attention to my health. While I was a manager, I never exercised. I already felt tired after work, so I just come home in the evening and watched TV. However, last year, I joined a health club and began to do regular exercise. As a result I have lost over 10 pounds and I feel much better. I've also started to eat more healthfully. I used to eat a lot of fast food, but now I do my own shopping. I buy lots of fruits and vegetables and cook them at home.

Of course, not all the changes have been that easy. For example, I don't feel as secure financially as I used to. When I was working as a manager, I never worried much about money. I could always count on getting my paycheck every two weeks. Working freelance, I don't a regular paycheck. So I have to make sure there is enough money until the next check arrives.

All in all, I really like my current lifestyle. Of course, that doesn't mean I'll never want to have a "regular" job. But for now, at least, it suits me.

Why did the author decide to become a freelance writer?

A、

He had always liked writing.

B、

He was dissatisfied with his company.

C、

He never liked his job as a manager.

D、

He wanted to change his lifestyle.

(2)、

What is the main difference the job change brought to author?

A、

He works fewer hours a week.

B、

He doesn't have to work on weekends.

C、

He can change his schedule as he likes.

D、

He can work at night and sleep late.

答案： C

(3)、

Why does the author do his own cooking now?

A、

He wants to lose weight.

B、

He wants to eat more healthfully.

C、

He has got lots of free time on his hands

D、

He no longer feels tired after work.

答案： B

(4)、

What is the chief problem now?

A、

He can't count on his paycheck to arrive on time.

B、

He has no regular work to do.

C、

He has to find a publisher for his books.

D、

He has to worry about money

答案: D

(5)、

At the end of the passage, the author indicates that_____.

A、

he is going to find a regular job soon

B、

he is not going to change his lifestyle in the near future

C、

he will continue to write for the rest of his life

D、

he will soon find out whether writing is a good career for him
