[1] 选项数.1

[1] A.

Other factors may affect consumers' buying behavior

1. Cultural Factors

Consumer behavior is deeply influenced by cultural factors such as buyer culture, subculture, and social class.

Culture

Basically, culture is the part of every society and is the important cause of a person's wants and behavior. The influence of culture on buying behavior varies from country to country therefore marketers have to be very careful in analyzing the culture of different groups, regions or even countries.

📖 Subculture

Each culture contains different subcultures such as religions, nationalities, geographic regions, racial groups etc. Marketers can use these groups by segmenting the market into various small portions. For example marketers can design products according to the needs of a particular geographic group.

📖 Social class

Every society possesses some form of social class which is important to the marketers because the buying behavior of people in a given social class is similar. In this way marketing activities could be tailored according to different social classes. Here we should note that social class is not only determined by income but there are various other factors as well, such as wealth, education, occupation, etc.

2. Social Factors

Social factors also impact the buying behavior of consumers. The important social factors are: reference groups, family, role and status.

📖 Reference groups

Reference groups have potential in forming a person's attitude or behavior. The impact of reference groups varies across products and brands. For example, if the product is visible such as dress, shoes, car, etc., then the influence of reference groups will be high.

📖 Family

Buyer behavior is strongly influenced by the member of a family. Therefore marketers are trying to find the roles and influence of the husband, wife and children. If the buying decision of a particular product is influenced by wife, then the marketers will try to target the women in their advertisement. Here we should note that buying roles change with change in consumer lifestyles.

📄 Roles and status

Each person possesses different roles and status in the society depending upon the groups, clubs, family, organization, etc. to which he/she belongs. For example a woman is working in an organization as finance manager. Now she is playing two roles, one of finance manager and the other of mother. Therefore her buying decisions will be influenced by her role and status.

3. Personal factors

Personal factors can also affect the consumer behavior. Some of the important personal factors that influence the buying behavior are lifestyle, economic situation, occupation, age, personality and self concept.

📄 Age

Age and life-cycle have potential impact on the consumer buying behavior. It is obvious that the consumers change the purchase of goods and services with the passage of time. Family life-cycle consists of different stages such as young singles, married couples, unmarried couples, etc. which help marketers develop appropriate products for each stage.

📖 Occupation

The occupation of a person has significant impact on his/her buying behavior. For example, a marketing manager of an organization will try to purchase business suits, whereas a low level worker in the same organization will purchase rugged work clothes.

📖 Economic situation

Consumer economic situation has great influence on his/her buying behavior. If the income and savings of a customer is high, then he/she will purchase more expensive products. On the other hand, a person with low income and savings will purchase inexpensive products.

📖 Lifestyle

Lifestyle of customers is another important factor affecting the consumer buying behavior. Lifestyle refers to the way a person lives in a society and is expressed by the things in his/her surroundings. It is determined by customer interests, opinions, activities, etc. and shapes his/her whole pattern of acting and interacting in the world.

📖 Personality

Personality changes from person to person, time to time and place to place. Therefore it can greatly influence the buying behavior of customers. Actually, personality is not what one wears; rather it is the totality of behavior of a man in different circumstances. It has different characteristics such as dominance, aggressiveness, self-confidence, etc. which can be useful to determine the consumer behavior for particular product or service.

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with the phrases and sentences used to show agreement or disagreement.

Lucy: 1 that's not a very good price. It's too expensive.

Asst: No, not expensive! Cheap!

Lucy: 2 I'll leave it, thank you.

Anna: Lucy, it's not fixed price in these shops. Bargain with her! Offer her a hundred.

Lucy: A hundred! But... 3 Erm... I'll give you a hundred.

Asst: 4 Look at my shop! I pay rent, i pay electricity ... last price, two hundred.

Lucy: 5 about the sweater at least. Thank you, bye bye!

Lucy: I can see the challenge in bargaining, but at the same time I was 6... erm 7...embarrassed, 8?

Anna: 9. What was there to be embarrassed about? This is how we Chinese like to do our shopping. We love to feel we're getting a bargain.

Lucy: Well, she made it all seem rather ... 10 ... personal, as if I was cheating her out of her profits.

Anna: Oh Lucy, you are funny! You'll never cheat a Chinese shopkeeper, believe me. But are you satisfied with your bargain?

Lucy: 11, I think I got a good deal. In England I'd have paid almost twice as much.

Anna: 12, it's made in China so it's bound to be cheaper here.

Lucy: 13, 14 if I'd accepted her first place. That was twice as much as it was worth.

Anna: 15 -you'll see those prices in the big department stores, and they're fixed price. No fun at all, and more expensive.

Listen to a dialogue and note down the attitudes of Tony, Mike and their dads towards branding when they buy presents for family members.

[3] 正确答案.A

[3] 难易度.中

[3] 选项数.1

[3] A.

1. Tony's attitudes towards branding

It was a reward from his dad ; people need other people to see that they have made it, that they have succeeded; people make money hard and spend hard, too; it gives them face.

2. Tony's dad's attitudes towards branding

Tony's dad's really proud of Tony, and he wants Tony to have only the best; so the money doesn't matter – it's the quality of the gift that counts, and everybody knows that these are the best.

3. Mike's attitudes towards branding

... in the States, it's the older generation that is most into branding (e.g., Dad just bought Mom a Cartier watch for their wedding anniversary).

4. Mike's dad's attitudes towards branding

Mike's dad has shown great love and respect by choosing that expensive brand for his wife; he knows the value of money, and knows when to spend it to make his wife really happy.
