It may be among the youngest national literatures in the world.

Its real history, roughly from the end of the Revolutionary War (October,1783), is only about 200 years or more.

Although short, however, still full of glories and shining masterpieces and writers. From its first imitative activities to creative attempts nowadays, American literature gradually gains its unique style, theme and form, and becomes more and more
America in its true sense.

And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth.
I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I--
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference

To be, or not to be: that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them? To die: to sleep;
No more; and by a sleep to say we end
The heart-ache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep;
To sleep: perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub;
These lines are taken from a famous play named -----.
